Training Flights
At Castle Air Base
Halted During Probe

MADERA, Calif. (UP)—A board of Air Force officers studied the wreckage of a B52 Stratofortress today in the hope of finding out why the eight-engine jet burst into flames and fell to earth, carrying five men to their deaths.

Two men parachuted to safety shortly before the accident Monday afternoon. They were treated for minor injuries at Castle Air Force Base Hospital, 40 miles from here.

The Air Force identified the survivors as Maj. Benjamin R. Ostlund, 36, of Coos Bay, Ore.; and Capt. William J. Vetter, 38, of Louisville, Ky.

The Air Force withheld the names of the dead until it has notified their next of kin. All the bodies were recovered.

Halt All B52 Flights

While the Air Force board investigated the crash, Brig. Gen. William Eubanks Jr., commander of the 93rd Bombardment Wing, ordered all B52 training flights at Castle halted.

The scene of the crash was nine miles east of this central California city and 160 miles southeast of San Francisco.

The plane was apparently flying at less than 3,000 feet, returning to its base at Castle after a training flight. A spokesman said:

"Things must have happened fast. As far as we know, there was no radio exchange between the plane and the base before the crash."

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitch, whose farmhouse narrowly escaped being hit by the falling plane, were working in a nearby field.

Heard Loud Noise

"We heard a loud noise and when we looked up, we saw this large ball of flame heading for the earth," they said. "The plane dug a hole about five to six feet deep about 100 yards from our house."

The plane crashed at 5:45 p. m. EDT. It hurled pieces of wreckage for yards around. One flying fragment set fire to an unoccupied farmhouse belonging to Robert Keough, destroying it in a matter of minutes.

Other fragments destroyed two barns, cut telephone lines between Madera and Fresno, hit a car and bus on busy U. S. Highway 99, and piled up on the Southern Pacific main line tracks, delaying the Oakland-bound San Joaquin daylight for 20 minutes.

HTHS Deficit Near $70,000 As Predicted

The financial report of the Harrisburg Township high school for the fiscal year ended June 30 is published in today's Register by W. B. Welch, treasurer, and shows a deficit in the educational fund of $69,292.41.

This is in line with statements by Principal Ellis Henson and school board members when they requested an increase in the educational fund tax rate earlier this year. The increase was granted by voters.

The report shows an overdraft of $9,292.41, and in addition, the district borrowed $30,000 on anticipation warrants and drew another $30,000 from taxes collected this spring which ordinarily should not have been required until after July 1.

The building fund at the end of the year showed a balance of $720.63, and this remained after a considerable amount of repairs to buildings during the year, so the building fund is in a favorable condition.

Mr. Henson stated that the educational fund operating budget for the current year is about $1,000 less than last year, and the amount of funds received from the tax increase will be applied to the deficit. These funds will not be received in full until after the end of the current year, however, so this year also will end with a deficit, but eventually it will be wiped out by the income from the increased tax rate.

I saw how Alexander was operating the equipment in the front. Every time a car passed the speed was shown by a hand on a meter. And the speed also was recorded on a graph, by means of an inked needle.

I watched the operation for a while. There was considerable traffic and during the 20 or 25 minutes I was there, five vehicles were stopped for speeding. When the car went through the beam and the indicators showed that it was going in excess of the limit in the speed zone, Alexander would radio to Officers Michael Taggart and Art Athmer down the road, telling them to stop a certain type and color of car that would be approaching them.

When stopped the officers would write out a ticket and radio back the license number of the car. Alexander would write down the license number and the date on the graph right beside the speed which was recorded.

"The courts have been accepting this process of recording speeds," Sgt. Stinson said, "on the test."

Find Human Skull in Independence Township

Believed Woman's Head; Person Dead
About Three Months

Officers today began investigating the finding of a human skull in the southwest part of Independence township.

The skull, with part of an ear, a bit of hair, and some scalp remaining, was taken to the county jail last night by Ralph and George Wilkins, who said they had found it and brought it to Harrisburg.

"We've got a man's head out here in the car and we want to turn it over to you," Sheriff William T. Barrett said the men said to him.

They told the sheriff they did not see any other parts of a body. Deputy Coroner Jesse Gibbons, a licensed embalmer, said he believed the skull to be of a woman. He estimated the person had not been dead more than three months.

Some blond or gray hair could be seen on the left side, the same side where the ear could be seen and on the side where part of the scalp had slipped.

There were but two teeth. Gibbons and Sheriff Barrett took the skull to a dentist to see if he could help them at arriving at some clue.

It was difficult to tell whether there was any foul play around the head, although it was stated by some observers that some teeth could have been knocked out.

Hill vs. Stroke Lawsuit in Progress

A law suit arising from a collision, Mr. and Mrs. Clint Hill vs. Ronald Stroke, is in progress today in circuit court before a jury.

The plaintiffs are represented by Atty. Ralph Harris of Marion and Atty. Trafton Dennis. Stroke is represented by Atty. DeWitt Twente and Atty. Charles Jelliffe. Stroke's father, Tom Stroke, has a counter-claim filed in the case.

The lawsuit, Maxine Pickett vs. C. Mart Watson and Wilburn Bernard Farris, which was being heard, was ended yesterday when a settlement was reached before conclusion of the trial.

Club Near Centralia Destroyed by Fire

CENTRALIA, Ill. (UP)—A $40,000 fire demolished the "51-Club" on U. S. 51 two miles north of Centralia early today.

Centralia fire protection district officials said an unidentified truck driver sounded the alarm. Cause of the fire was not known. The club was closed at the time of the fire.

Park Service Official Suggests Plans To Develop Shawnee Hills Area

Shawnee Hills Recreation area members last night heard a top National Park Service official make suggestions as to how to develop the southern Illinois scenic regions successfully and tell just how much help his division could give.

Speaker was Allen T. Edmunds of Philadelphia, regional director of the Division of Recreation and Planning of the National Park Service, who addressed the group at a dinner meeting held at Metropolis. A half-dozen were present from Saline county at the six-county area meeting. Other counties in the unit are Massac, Johnson, Pope, Gallatin, and Hardin.

Next meeting will be at Eldorado on Oct. 15.

Ray Mitterdorf, vice president of the Shawnee Hills group, was the host for last night's affair, presided over by George Scherrer of Shawneetown, the president.

Besides Mr. Edmunds, State Senator Glen O. Jones, Cong. Kenneth Gray, Rep. Gordon Kerr, Rex Karnes of Southern Illinois University and C. L. McCormick, who will be elected a representative in November, made remarks.

Mr. Edmunds, who said he believed the planning of the area would require professional help for success, said the following things should be done:

1. All resources in the six counties should be listed and analyzed.

Water is the No. 1 prerequisite for any major activity, he said, adding that attractive wooded areas also are needed.

2. The needs to develop the area should be determined.

3. A master plan should be developed.

4. There should be provided an adequate program of use. Only when an area has use will it have value, he stated, adding people won't stay in an area if there is nothing to do. The use program should be so established to take advantage of resources, with the program highlighting the resources.

5. Let people know what you have. Have newspaper and magazine articles, if possible, tell of the area. Engage the services of professional advertising agencies.

"It's a tough road, this recreation business," he said.

Mr. Edmunds said the National Park Service is authorized to assist states and subdivisions on general, but not specific, planning.

Sensor Jones told of the commitments he had received from the Illinois State Department of Public Works and Buildings and the State Department of Conservation on locating roadside rest areas and directional signs. He said E. A. Rosenstone, director of public works and buildings, had written that two such areas have been located along Route 145 in the Lake Glendale and Dixon Springs areas and that he had directed his department to find at least 25 more such areas south of Route 13.

Restore Shawneetown Buildings
He said he also had received a letter from Director Palmer of the department of conservation stating that steps are being taken now to restore the bank building and Posey building in Old Shawneetown. Jones reiterated that tourist trade can be built up to be of great economic importance to this area.

Cong. Gray, who secured and introduced Mr. Edmunds, pointed to the great recreational potentiality in southern Illinois and urged keeping the Shawnee Hills group on a non-partisan basis. He suggested that organization speakers go before civic clubs throughout southern Illinois telling of the plans.

Tell the Truth, President Advises GOP Campaigners

$200,000 Fire Destroys Three Marion Stores

Apparently Breaks
Out By Blast
In Odum Market

MARION, Ill. (UP)—Damage has been estimated at $200,000 by real estate and insurance men in a fire that destroyed the Heyde building housing three businesses here early today.

Fire Chief Herman May said the cause of the fire is not known. Destroyed were the Frank Hepler grocery, Dan Odum's market and the TVW clothing store.

Virgil Wilson, athletic director of the Marion Unit 2 schools and former Marion High School basketball coach, is a partner in the clothing firm.

Volunteer fireman Clint Boles escaped serious injury when an explosion blew out the rear of the Odum market, where the fire apparently broke out, and covered him with debris. Firemen from Marion, Herrin and West Frankfort fought the blaze for about two hours before controlling it.

Christmas merchandise valued at $3,000 and stored upstairs in the building went up in smoke. For a time it was feared that a Chinese laundry employee, Lee Leong, might have died in the blaze. He lived upstairs in the building, but had visited Monday night at Benton.

Windows in business houses across the street were cracked by the blaze and the door to the Marion fire department 150 feet away was scorched.

Telephone service was interrupted briefly when the power line to the exchange was burned, but emergency generating equipment was pressed into service.

Officials said the building was owned by Phil Heyde, Olney, and his sister, Georgia Heyde, Marion.

He said he hoped that the Hiss issue would not be injected into the campaign.

"Anyone who attempts to create differences between the two parties on the fundamental issue of loyalty to the government does the American people a disservice," he said.

At the same time he accused Vice President Richard M. Nixon and GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall of taking "the same low road" they traveled in the 1954 congressional campaign in raising the Red-in-government issue. Both had pressed him for comment on Mr. Truman's Hiss remark.

"We ought to know whether President Eisenhower approves of this sort of campaigning," Stevenson said.

The White House had no comment.

But Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland told a news conference later the Hiss case will be an issue insofar as it indicates a "gross carelessness" on the part of the previous Democratic administration.

He also said it raises a question as to whether former Secretary of State Dean Acheson and other "careless" Democratic officials might be brought "back into power" if the Democrats win in November.

Knowland who headed into a 20,000-mile campaign swing today said he will discuss the matter whenever he "feels it is pertinent."

Mr. Ledbetter was a former employee of Muddy Power plant.

Bluford Woman Dies in Auto Crash

BLUFORD, Ill. (UP)—Mrs. Goldie Martin, 30, Bluford, was killed but five other occupants of her car including her three sons, escaped serious injury today when her car overturned in a bean field near Belle Rive.

Charles Mendenhall, 27, Bluford, was admitted to Jefferson Memorial Hospital in Mount Vernon with minor injuries.

Other occupants of the car were John Gream, 22, Bluford, and Mrs. Martin's three sons who were not hurt, state police said.

State Patrolman Dallas Shelton said Mrs. Martin apparently lost control of the car on a blacktop road two miles north of Belle Rive in Jefferson county.

Adlai Differs
With Truman
On Hiss Issue

WASHINGTON (UP)—Adlai Stevenson's camp hoped today that he removed the Alger Hiss case as an issue in the presidential campaign.

But Republicans made it plain he had not.

Stevenson publicly differed Monday with former President Truman's contention that Hiss was not a Communist spy. The Democratic presidential nominee told a news conference he "never doubted" the jury verdict that sent Hiss to prison for denying he aided a Communist spy ring.

He said he hoped that the Hiss issue would not be injected into the campaign.

"Anyone who attempts to create differences between the two parties on the fundamental issue of loyalty to the government does the American people a disservice," he said.

Ike Speaks at Kickoff for Tour by Nixon

Eisenhower Says
GOP Does Not Have To Claim Perfection

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower today urged Republican leaders to go to the people with the "truth" during the 1956 campaign and let the Democrats "do the yelling."

Mr. Eisenhower spoke at a breakfast at National Airport at a kickoff for the campaign tour of Vice President Richard M. Nixon. About 250 Republican leaders were present for the ham-and-eggs breakfast which also marked the departure of five other Republican campaign teams.

Mr. Eisenhower spoke after GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall had introduced members of a Republican "truth squad," which will tour the country.

"I see no reason for going to the public with anything but the truth," Mr. Eisenhower said.

He said the GOP does not need to claim perfection for the administration.

Failures "Beyond Control"

Where there have been failures, Mr. Eisenhower said, they were "because of circumstances often beyond our control."

For example, he said, while world peace may not yet be secure, thousands of American mothers are thankful that their sons are not fighting.

The President said the economic situation is good although there may be trouble spots. As for the farmers, he said, they have been taken out of a system which failed to work and have been given hope of getting their fair share of the national income.

Speaking after Mr. Eisenhower, Nixon said GOP campaigners should "look at the record."

"We don't have to whitewash it with clever quips or fancy phrases," Nixon said. "Plain talk will do the job."

"The American people under the Eisenhower administration have had the best four years of their lives."

Nixon acknowledged that the campaign slogan, "let's look at the record," originated with a Democratic presidential candidate, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York. But he said it was proper to quote a Democrat since the GOP hopes to get "millions of Democrats" to vote for the administration this fall.

Nixon Praises Ike

Turning to Mr. Eisenhower, Nixon said:

"We are proud of the leadership you have given us. We will see you on Nov. 6 with the results . . . and they are going to be good."

After the breakfast, Mr. Eisenhower accompanied Nixon out to the airport ramp to board his chartered plane.

The President then left the airport to return to the White House. Nixon and his wife, Pat, took off at 7 a. m. for their 16-day tour of 32 states. Hall described the 15,000-mile swing as "the most extensive 'prop-stop' tour in American political history."

Senate GOP Leader William F. Knowland, House GOP Leader Joseph W. Martin Jr., Secretary of Interior Fred A. Seaton, Rep. Charles A. Halleck (Ind.), and the four members of the Republican "truth squad" took off in rapid succession in other chartered planes.

Nixon's first stop was Indianapolis.

Nixon today at Indianapolis completed Adlai Stevenson for a "forthright statement" on the Alger Hiss case and said he hoped "it will not become an issue" in this election campaign.

Nixon, arriving at Indianapolis as first stop on a 32-state campaign swing, told newsmen at an airport news conference:

"I see no reason why it (the Hiss matter) should be an issue in the campaign. I hope it will not become an issue."

About Town

And Country

By TIMOTHEUS T.

Reporter Watches

Radar Check of

Cars at Carrier Mills

"State police are checking cars with radar down at Carrier Mills," the guy told me; so down to Carrier Mills I started.

I started at a pretty fair clip, driving down Route 45, but the more I thought about radar the harder it was to press on the accelerator.

So by the time I got to Liberty crossing I was going 40 miles an hour and when I reached Ledford I was barely making 30. And when I reached Carrier Mills I was creeping.

I didn't want the distinction of being one who was caught speeding by the device when I knew just where it was operating.

Arriving in town, I saw a state car loaded with equipment parked alongside of the road and state police cars about three or four blocks up the way, where they could halt speeders.

The radar was set up in a 25 miles per hour zone and was checking cars going north. State Police Sgt. Murray Stinson explained to me the apparatus that Officer Guthrie Alexander was operating inside the car.

"That's the screen there in the trunk of the auto," he said as he pointed to a device in the partly opened lid of the vehicle. "It throws out a beam for 150 feet across the road at a height of three feet."

So when cars on the road hit the beam, which naturally they didn't see, the speed was recorded in the front seat of the car. Not one time, but twice, was it recorded.

I saw how Alexander was operating the equipment in the front. Every time a car passed the speed was shown by a hand on a meter. And the speed also was recorded on a graph, by means of an inked needle.

I watched the operation for a while. There was considerable traffic and during the 20 or 25 minutes I was there, five vehicles were stopped for speeding. When the car went through the beam and the indicators showed that it was going in excess of the limit in the speed zone, Alexander would radio to Officers Michael Taggart and Art Athmer down the road, telling them to stop a certain type and color of car that would be approaching them.

When stopped the officers would write out a ticket and radio back the license number of the car. Alexander would write down the license number and the date on the graph right beside the speed which was recorded.

"The courts have been accepting this process of recording speeds," Sgt. Stinson said, "on the test."

Champion of Truth

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT
The death of Homer S. Cummings at the age of 86 brought reminders of his long, distinguished legal career capped by services as U. S. attorney general under Franklin D. Roosevelt from 1933 to 1939.

But his memory will perhaps be most deeply etched in history because of a murder case he handled as a Connecticut state's attorney in 1924.

The case is required reading for Justice Department lawyers. Law schools throughout the land point its moral. Countless legal journals recount it.

On May 27, 1924, State's Attorney Cummings rose in court to begin the murder prosecution of one Harold Israel, then a penniless man, who was accused of shooting down a priest one dark February night on the streets of Bridgeport.

Methodically, Cummings laid out the damning evidence against the defendant.

He had confessed. He had led police over his route of flight from the murder scene, designating spots mentioned by witnesses. He told police he'd hidden the shell from the fatal bullet in his room. They found it.

The bullet in the priest's body was .32 caliber, and so was Israel's revolver. Ballistics experts declared his gun had fired the fatal shot.

When seized, Israel wore a cap and a dark overcoat with velvet collar. Seven witnesses said the murderer was so garbed. Five positively identified Israel as being at, near, or some distance from the murder scene.

One witness, a waitress friend, said she looked through her restaurant window near the scene and saw him wave to her moments before the crime. This killed his alibi—that he was at a movie.

Cummings told the court there was no indication violence or duress had been used against Israel by police. But then he added:

"But it goes without saying that it is just as important for a state's attorney to use the great powers of his office to protect the innocent as it is to convict the guilty."

Thereupon, without a single note to guide him, the prosecutor proceeded point by point to demolish the entire case against the defendant, until he walked from the courtroom a free man.

Physicians he selected told Cummings Israel's confession was made when he was jittery, exhausted, and cowed by identifying witnesses. After a deep sleep he repudiated it.

His trip over the route of flight was meaningless. He had added no new facts but, as in his confession, merely repeated what he knew witnesses had said.

Cummings showed that several witnesses only recalled the murderer's cap and velvet-collared coat after reading of it in the papers. Some said the cap was green, others gray. In fact, Israel's was brown.

The prosecutor had restaged the murder scene, but three or four seconds in dim light to fix in mind a face they'd never seen before—fix it well enough to remember two weeks later. He questioned their positive identifications.

Cummings broke the waitress' story. He stood behind the restaurant counter with her on a night like the murder evening. Windows were steamy and lights cast odd reflections. She couldn't recognize passing friends outside. He couldn't identify his own aids. She confessed she lied to try for the reward money.

Next he proved the hidden shell in Israel's room was but one of many. The defendant and two ex-army buddies had held target practice from a rooming house window. And Cummings got six gun experts to prove that the original ballistics test was

Un-American Activity

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Nasser's Boastful Tirade On How He Browbeat U. S. Diplomats. Though Cabled To State Dept., Not Disclosed To American Public; Indicates Egyptian's Hitlerlike Megalomania.

EGYPTIAN-ISRAELI BORDER. — In the files of the American embassy in Cairo is a speech delivered by Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser which the American public has never read or heard about.

It has been cabled to the State Department in Washington, but has never been released, nor will it be. For it shows the megalomaniacal character of the dictator John Foster Dulles picked when he bet American foreign policy in the Near East on Colonel Nasser.

Here is the way Colonel Nasser boasted to the Egyptian people about the way he browbeat American diplomats:

"Immediately after the arms deal was announced, Washington sent a delegate, George Allen, to Egypt," declared Nasser, referring to the man who was then assistant secretary for the Near East. "Cables from Washington said Allen carried an ultimatum to Egypt."

"Then an American official (reported to be U. S. Ambassador Henry Byroade) asked to meet me and I agreed. He told me he was very sorry. He said Allen carried a strongly worded message from the American government which might hurt Egypt's pride and nationalism."

"He said: 'In this connection, I assure you, you can ignore all its possible effects and I advise you to accept.'"

"I asked him: 'A message insulting Egypt's nationalism and pride? What do you mean by hurting Egypt's pride and nationalism?'"

LETTER NEVER DELIVERED

"He said: 'It is a message from Mr. Dulles. A very strong message. We ourselves are amazed by the way this message is being sent. We ask you to maintain your nerves. You are always calm. Do accept his message with cool nerves.'"

"I said: 'How can I accept a message which hurts Egypt's pride?'"

"He answered: 'This will have no practical consequences. I guarantee you this. Egypt's pride will only be hurt by the letter but not in practice.'"

"I said: 'Listen to me. I'm not a professional prime minister. I never in my life expected to become prime minister. It just happened. If your representative comes into my office and says one word, I will kick him out. That is official.'"

"The American official called once again. He said he had informed Mr. Allen of our talk and that Mr. Allen was perplexed. He said: 'Allen says that if he comes to inform you of the message he will be kicked out. And if he goes back to Mr. Dulles without faulty, that Israel's gun had not in fact fired the fatal shot. On top of this, his gun was a dull black. All witnesses said the murderer's was shiny."

At this dramatic moment in court, Cummings, then 54, spoke the universal language of justice in a free society. He could ask no greater monument than to be remembered for this championship of truth at the expense of cheap victory. For he saved a man's life and made America a freer place to live in.

communicating the message, Mr. Dulles will dismiss him."

"Mr. Allen came, but did not open his mouth. He sat and listened to the Egyptian viewpoint and briefed me on the American viewpoint."

BYROADE TO SOUTH AFRICA

The above tirade means on or both of two things:

(1) Colonel Nasser has got into the habit of behaving like Hitler in receiving foreign diplomats.

(2) Some American diplomats, unless Nasser strayed far from the truth, have been afraid to carry out instructions from Washington.

Ambassador Byroade has now been transferred from Egypt to South Africa, the Siberia of the American diplomatic service.

George Allen has been transferred from assistant secretary to be ambassador to Greece.

The man who transferred them, John Foster Dulles, is the man who sat down with Nasser in 1953, listened to his sweet-talk, and decided to base American foreign policy in the Near East on the dictator of Egypt and on rebuilding his country.

As a result of that policy a tight American embargo was slapped on arms to Israel, while American Sherman tanks were sent to Egypt, plus other arms to Saudi Arabia and Syria.

Since that policy, the Nasser whom we backed has recognized Red China, bartered for $240,000,000 worth of Russian MIGs, tanks and rockets, sent Egyptian military advisers to stir up revolt against our allies in North Africa, helped oust British Gen. Glubb Pasha from Jordan, made speech after speech berating the United States, tried to blackmail the United States into building the Aswan dam, and when that help was finally refused, seized the Suez Canal.

It was possible to seize the canal with no difficulty because John Foster Dulles had heeded and badgered the British until all troops were withdrawn without any guarantee given the British by Nasser.

WHY DULLES ERRED

The reason why Dulles and advisers made such an error regarding the untied 38-year-old dictator are:

(1) On the surface Nasser had a good case. The Egyptian masses definitely needed help. Thirty Egyptians own most of the wealth of the country—a situation made for Communist propaganda and revolt. But Nasser never carried out his promises, spent his money on arms, not for his people.

(2) A pro-Arab clique inside the State Department has urged more support for Egypt and the Arab states. They fear Saudi Arabian oil may suffer as a result of American private support for Israel. This group is led by Undersecretary Herbert Hoover, Jr., but has potent backing from Loy Henderson and other pro-Arab diplomats.

(3) Colonel Nasser had the secret support of a new, little known arm of U. S. foreign policy—the Central Intelligence Agency. John Foster heads the official bureau of American foreign policy. His brother Allen heads the shadowy, sometimes more potent branch of foreign policy, the CIA. To those who know both Dulles brothers, Allen is the less publicized but the more able. He reports on foreign affairs direct to the President. His recommendations are based on the reports of a vast army of secret agents. The identity of some, if known, would cause their death. But because they operate secretly, because they have been immune from congressional investigation, because there is no public accounting of CIA funds, CIA's reports are sometimes far off base.

CIA was backing Colonel Nasser. It may even have helped to put him in office.

Ex-Bodyguard Of Rackets Czar Sought by FBI

NEW YORK (AP)—The FBI hunted the nation today for an "extremely dangerous" former bodyguard of rackets czar Johnny Dio, accused mastermind of the Victor Riesel acid blinding attack.

Target of the search was Theodore Riel, 43, suspected of driving a car used in the attack on Riesel last April 5 near Times Square.

The heavyset hoodlum, with arrests for draft dodging and felonious assault, disappeared from his usual lower East Side haunts soon after the July 28 murder of Abraham Telvi, named by the FBI as the actual acid-thrower.

One police source indicated that Riel may have supplied the acid used in the sneak attack.

A terse announcement by FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover in Washington Monday revealed that Riel had been named in a secret complaint before a U. S. commissioner in New York Sept. 11.

Riel, like Dio and six other known garment district figures under arrest, was charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice "by causing an assault to be made on Victor Riesel."

Dio, who was born John Dioguardia, and the other accused conspirators were ordered Monday to stand trial Oct. 15. They will be accused of planning and carrying out the acid attack to prevent the labor columnist from testifying before a grand jury investigation of racketeering in the fur and garment industries.

Malt beverages were made by the early Egyptians, Hebrews of Biblical times, and the Greeks and Romans of the classical past.

Husband True to Marriage Vows Mrs. Hodge Says

GRANITE CITY, Ill. (AP)—Mrs. Orville Hodge has defended her husband as a man who remained true to his marriage vows, the Chicago Sun-Times said today.

In a Sun-Times interview, Mrs. Hodge said she never heard of Bonita Lillie, her husband's alleged lady friend, "until I read her name in the newspapers."

The Sun-Times said Mrs. Hodge wept as she talked about Hodge's life in prison, where he is serving a 12 to 15 year term for looting the state treasury while he was state auditor.

Miss Lillie, an interior decorator, has said she was in love with Hodge, and still loves him of the time and still loves him.

"What kind of person can that woman be?" Mrs. Hodge asked. "Forty-one years old and not married? All she can do is to try to give the impression that a married man admired her."

Eisenhowers to Visit Birth Place of Mamie

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower will set out on his first campaign trip a day earlier than scheduled so he and Mrs. Eisenhower can spend Thursday evening in Boone, Iowa, where Mrs. Eisenhower was born.

The change in plans was announced today by White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty.

Mr. Eisenhower previously planned to fly directly to Newton, Iowa, Friday to make a major campaign speech at the national plowing contest. The address will mark the beginning of his fight to keep the vital midwestern farm belt in the Republican column in November.

Under the change in plans, the President and Mrs. Eisenhower will leave for Boone Thursday afternoon and go on to Newton Friday.

The first family will spend Thursday night in a house built in 1870 by Mrs. Eisenhower's maternal grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Carl Carlson. They will be the guests of Mrs. Eisenhower's uncle and wife, Joel and Caroline Carlson.

Asked why the change in plans, Hagerty said Mrs. Eisenhower "wanted very much to go visit her uncle and stay at the family home." The Eisenhowers visited Boone in 1952.

Mrs. Eisenhower was born in Boone but not in the house now occupied by her uncle.

Western Big 3 Go Ahead with Suez Users Plan

LONDON (AP)—The Western Big Three agreed today to go ahead with formation of a "canal users association" despite Egypt's refusal to cooperate.

But their emphasis switched from an earlier plan to push an immediate "test case" against Egypt toward long-range preparations, including American help if Europe's oil supplies are cut off.

U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles brought Britain and France a personal message from President Eisenhower at the start of Big Three efforts to win world support for a long-term economic campaign against Egyptian control of the vital waterway.

Another drop in Suez Canal traffic was reported today. Only 31 ships were in transit, the lowest number since Egypt nationalized the canal last July 26. Egyptian sources said the ships were moving through the waterway at normal speed.

Amid Growing Opposition

The Big Three decision to go ahead full steam on the canal users association came against a background of growing animosity toward the plan and new moves by Egypt to torpedo the second London Suez conference before it starts.

Dulles flew in from the United States this morning and went immediately into discussions with British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Christian Pineau. The ministers also met with British Prime Minister Anthony Eden.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt already has turned down the plan as "an association for war." Monday, he called on the United Nations Security Council to keep a close watch on the situation. Today he called in the representatives of Pakistan and Ethiopia in an attempt to sabotage the London conference which begins Wednesday.

Both Ethiopia and Pakistan, while attending the London conference, have withheld approval of the canal users plan. And there were firm indications that others of the 18 nations which supported the original Dulles plan will refuse to put any teeth into the new proposal for a canal users association.

Buford Renews Mt. Vernon Feud

MOUNT VERNON, Ill. (AP)—A feud between Mayor O. R. Buford and the City Council broke out again Monday night after lying dormant for several months.

Buford argued with the council for more than an hour over a proposal that city hall offices—which he used as business locations—be rented to the chamber of commerce.

The mayor charged that the proposal if adopted would be a "final blow to the city manager form of government," under which the city of Mount Vernon is now run. Buford, when the city manager form of government was installed, used the city hall offices for his vacuum cleaner business until forced out by the council.

Buford was opposed on the rental suggestion by Councilman Coy Mather, a member of the chamber's board of directors, and Bill Breene, retiring chamber manager. Four other council members were split on the issue at first, but finally voted to rent three of the six offices formerly used by Buford to the chamber for $95 per month.

Youth to Stand Trial Oct. 29 for Auto Deaths Of Two Little Girls

CHICAGO (AP)—A 16-year-old high school student was scheduled to stand trial Oct. 29 for the auto deaths of two little girls on the first day of school.

Richard Dombek pleaded innocent Monday to charges of reckless homicide in the deaths of Alexandra Griffiths, 5, and her sister, Janette, 7.

Dombek's car careened over a curb into a crowd of school children en route home to lunch on the first day of school, killing the Griffiths girls.

Avah Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Brose Phillips, and Dianne Mathis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Mathis of the Raleigh community, are among 27 freshmen at the University of Illinois who will not be required to take Rhetoric 101 as a result of the Rhetoric replacement examination.

The University paper, "The Daily Illini," stated that out of 3,646 students writing the test, 1,035 or 27.5 per cent will enroll in Rhetoric 100, the remedial non-credit course. About 72.5 per cent passed the test and will be admitted to Rhetoric 101 and 102.

This honor which has come to these two local girls is a compliment to the English department at the Harrisburg Township high school.

Plane Ditches In Pacific Ocean; Crew Rescued

HONOLULU, T. H. (AP)—A four-engine Navy Constellation carrying 18 crewmen ditched in the Pacific Ocean 100 miles south of Guam Monday, but the men were rescued with minor injuries.

Two of the crewmen suffered minor injuries in the crash and were flown to Agaña, Guam for treatment, the Navy said. The other 16 were taken by surface craft and returned to the Pacific island.

The plane, attached to Early Airborne Warning Squadron Three, was returning to Guam from a mission 800 miles to the south when one engine developed trouble. Six minutes later a second engine went out, and the pilot reported the plane was heading for the water.

After the plane ditched, the crewmen took to two life rafts in calm seas and fired flares while rescue planes and surface craft rushed to the scene.

The Navy said the downed plane was piloted by Lt. Cmdr. J. B. Nabors Jr., whose family is on Guam. The two slightly injured men were identified at AT-3 T. S. Bodek, and AT-2 B. W. Holladay, Lebanon, Tenn.

On Nov. 6, the voters of Saline county will be given an opportunity to vote for the continuation of the Tuberculosis Tax law, which provides for free care and treatment of any county resident who has tuberculosis. The law has been in effect in this county for the last 18 years, and must be revoked this year.

Ninety-six per cent of TB patients cannot afford to pay for their own hospital expenses. It is with this tax that Saline county has been able to finance this cost.

Recent callers at the home of Opal and Darlene Goodson were Mrs. Lee Tyree of Eldorado, Mrs. Edna Lasseter, Mrs. Myra Weir, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Yates, all of Raleigh.

It must continue the tax to furnish care and hospitalization for the control of this disease. Tuberculosis still kills more persons in the productive years of life than any other disease. The tuberculosis tax law gives us the best protection against TB by offering diagnostic aids such as X-rays and laboratory tests and sanatorium care—all things necessary to identify and eradicate tuberculosis in Saline county.

The Tuberculosis Tax law is an act which, when passed in any county in Illinois, permits the county's board of supervisors (county commissioners) to levy a tax not to exceed 7½c on each $100 assessed valuation of property for the care and treatment of tuberculous individuals in that county. The law also provides rules and regulations for the administration of the fund so appropriated. The money goes into the county treasury, and is administered by a board of three persons, one of whom must be a licensed physician. This board is appointed by the County Board of Supervisors and serves without pay.

Vote YES on the Tuberculosis Tax Law ballot on Nov. 6. It may save you from tuberculosis.

The Spanish-American War saw 381,000 men in service; World War I had 4,613,000; World War II, 16,500,000.

That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.
